OIL AND GAS

Those who have been skeptical as to the probable staying qualities of the National Oil and Gas Company's gusher on the W. J. Robinson farm in Indiana township, have another guess coming. Instead of declining rapidly from its initial production the well has shown commendable staying qualities, and further emphasizes what has been previously stated relative to the longevity of the thirty-foot wells. For the twenty-four hours ended at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, the well on the Robinson farm averaged twenty-three and one-half barrels.

During that time the well had been agitated but once, and then only for a short time.

The National Oil and Gas Company had completed much work in that district during the last three years. None of it previous completions had been large, but each held up with great regularity, and it is this fact that inspired the belief that they were drawing their production from a pool. It is now evident that their theory was well founded, and the gusher no doubt brings to the front some very prolific producing territory. During the period of a low market the National Oil and Gas Company did not at all times have smooth sailing, but its tenacity has been fully rewarded, to say nothing of having the distinction of having drilled in the largest well in the southwest Pennsylvania fields in a great many years. When the Canonsburg town-let pool was developed in Washington county, about four years ago, some wells nearly as large as the Robinson farm gusher were completed, but they did not hold up for any considerable time.

New Well Expected In.

In the thirty-foot development, south of Dorseyville, in Indiana township, interest is now centered in the American Natural Gas Company's well on the J. Haas farm. The well was drilled at 11 feet in the sand yesterday morning, and should get the pay at twenty-six feet in the sand. This location is 250 feet west of the gusher. Should the well come in a good producer, it will show the producing formation extends that distance to the west and adds just that much to the width of the producing streak. How far it extends to the northwest remains to be determined.

There is interest in the northern end of Allegheny county. On the Three Degree road in Richland township, Kell and Company are down 1,800 feet at a test on the Andrew Kelly farm. If oil is found in this test it probably will be the 100-foot formation that supplies it. Near the Barkerstown tunnel Cypher and Company are down 800 feet at a test on the Brown farm. One mile east of the Kittanning pike, near Cross Keys, Harbison and Company expect to get the sand the first of the week at a second test on the Emma Harbison farm.

West Virginia.

The lower Southwest fields, West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio, are furnishing nothing better than light producers. In the Big Injun and development in Union district, Clay county, the Davenport Oil and Gas Company has completed No. 14 on the Frank Cox farm and has a twenty-barrel producer. This location is 600 feet southwest of Craig and Sons' No. 3. Recently there has been an encouraging increase in the size of the late completions in this development.

In the deep sand territory in the Bremen district, Rich Creek township, Fairfield district, the Carter Oil Company has completed and shot No. 8 on the W. C. McCandlish farm and it produced eighteen barrels the ensuing twenty-four hours. It will make an eight or ten barrel producer. With the completion of this well, operations in the Freeman district come to a halt for the present. The Carter company, however, has made the location for a second test on the Fred Mericle farm.
